It is wonderful what trifles, light as air, are, to the Radical mind, confirmation strong as proofs of holy writ, that no elec-tion can be held in an ex-slave-holding State with safety to the country, unless they can be backed by troops. We always find them unanimous on this subject about one month before an election. In North Carolina they were not even satisfied with Carolina they were not even satisfied with Holden's army of State regulars and colored militia, but procured a reinforcement of United States artillery; and still are not satisfied. They complain that they were not "adequately protected" at the late election in that State, prove it by pointing to an adverse majority of 20,000 votes, and demand that Congress shall overthrow the

Now, be it remembered that the State companies thus far organized are composed of the fixed local population—the farmers, housekeepers and business men of the housekeepers and business men of the community. They serve without pay, and strictly as a posse comitatus under the direc-tion of the civil authorities. There is no martial law, no suscension of habeas corpus. They have not arrested or more seed a single person, black or white. They front, we wonder and we are ashared no nothing but shoulder arms ashamed to contemplate him in time of and show themselves when the civil peace, arraying himself against the formand themselves when they might be pus. They have not arrested or molested authorities thought they might be needed to prevent disturbances. They have done not one of the thousand things for which Radicals employ troops in all the Southern States. The only rea-son the Commercial can give for demanding their disarming is the assumption that they are "enemies of the national Govern-ment," and will do something dreadful after a while. The only ground for this assumption is the statement that no Republicans belong to these organizations. Has any white Republican been denied the right to join them? Has the State refused to arm and equip any company of white Republicans? a mere engine of partisan tyranny and terrorism, like the Hadical militia of Ten-nessee, North Carolina, Texas, Arkansas and other States, we care not how soon it and other States, we care not how soon it is put down as a band of lawless cutthroats. The people of this State mean nothing of that kind, and will sustain nothing at that kind. Until they are guilty of some overt act in the direction anticipated by the Commercial, common decency requires that a guilty purpose should not be imputed to them.

The Republican party cannot and never will give as a bond of universal fellow. den, Kirke & Co. are still at large in Whatever fault may be found with the au-therities of Kentucky they cannot be as, cased or using military force against persons that are not known melefactors. The Montgomery Mail is unfortunate in making an illustration out of the late Dem-ceratic victory in North Carolina. We have no idea that we can allay he learful forebodings with which the oulsville Commercial contemplates every with the Molthe Register, under cover of the name of Democrat, to get up a party spirit out of accord with the Democratic organization and out of harmony with the spirit of the age. He wants to get up a white man's party which can only live long enough to lose us a few members of Copgress, which we are the concongress, which we might otherwise se-cure, and will then pass into oblivion as a persecuting off-shoot of a persecuting spirit, which was as idle as it was un-worthy. But time has come to the aid of moderation, which is the common interegood citizens everywhere, and it is d what the politicians if left alone would never do. The national Democratic or-ganization, which is the slow and natural product of five years of reflection, goes to product of five years of reflection, goes to the country with a spirit broad enough to embrace every patriotic man North and South, with national ideas and a national spirit. It will bear down all opposition. It will first suppress its own red-hot ele-ments, and, having formed itself into a line of battle compact and composed, it will march upon the enemies of the Con-stitution and rout them house, foot and dangoons.

Netther the Radicals nor the Bourbons are so strong as they think themselves, are so strong as they think themselves, and as each faction, for purposes of its own, tries to make the other appear. Wherever either has encountered solid interests, freed from military dure partisan bias, it has gone to the wall. It was the spirit of the National Democratic idea which restored Tennessee and has encircled her with a belt which the Radicale have not dared assail. It was the spirit of unreflecting ultraism which lost Georgia her liberties. No power but that can regain those lost liberties for the brave old Empire State of the South. It we are to live under that flag we must make it an emblem of protection and not a sign of oppression; we must invoke it as our flag, and not curse it as the flag of our enemies; for, either for weal or woe, it is equally unrepublican method. If one is a fraud the other was ten times more so. It it is right to attempt the repeal of the one it is right to attempt the repeal of the cratic administration, it will be, on the other. care to ask, and therefore they demand the admission of the coolie on an equal foot-ing with the offipring of the proudest and noblest races as the world. Whether the new infusion will dilute and deteriorate the national composition, or will re-enforce the civilized manhood and morality of the country, whether it will depreciate the average national character for intelligence and virtue, or will retuse to blend with the mass of our population and remain for ever a separate and disturbing element in our political system, are questions which the Radicals never consider in their efforts to bring down the wages of labor.

Europe has poured into this country within the last generation a host of edusted men to minister at the altars of lit crature and science; engineers, miners, me chanics, who have started a thousand new and needful branches of skilled industry; merchants, bankers, farmers and a great army of common laborers, that are better educated than the nobles and princes of Europe were two centuries ago. These men are all sprung from the same great stock with ourselves. They readily under-stand and imbibe the spirit of our institu-tions, and one generation obliterates every shade of difference between them and us in language, manners, customs and feelings. With a white Virginian, New Yorker, Kentuckian or Ohioan you can live for years and never suspect that his father was an ininigrant from Europe. But it is not so with the races whom the hand of God has separated from us by a mark that time will never efface.

When the Radicals set about striking laws, and when in the act to enforce the Fifteenth amendment they undertook to encourage Atrican and Asiatic immigra tion, they thought of nothing but the re duction of wages. Pearing that the poor white mechanic might organize and strike for some share of the enormous profits se-cured by the tariff to capital invested in various manufacturing monopolies, torbid any State law taxing or exclusion the colored immigrants, and all the ex-citement produced by coolle importation they denounce as a revival of the of Know-Nothing spirit. The War News.

There was heavy fighting all day yesterday at Mars in Tour, a place about one-third of the way from Mets to Verdus. POSITION OF GERMANY.

Will the European War Close if France
Becomes a Republic?
[Translated for the Courier-Journal from Bellatinstockes Journal.]
It is not at all improbable that France in a few days will become a Republic. This event may happen suddenly, and it is therefore not out of place if one would form an idea what influence such a change would exercise in the situation of France to its present enemy, Germany. When Blamarck lately was asked whether at the conclusion of peace the desposition of Napoleon will be demanded, he asswered: "We do not fight for French, but for German interests;" or, in other words, whether at the conclusion of peace the desposition of Napoleon will be demanded, he asswered: "We do not fight for French, but for German interests," or, in other words, our war is not against persons, but against France, which through its government declared war upon us; but by whom France wants to be governed is not our basiness. This means simply non-interference with its politics. It shows at the same time the attitude which Germany, being forced to fight, will have to take toward the French Republic. Whether France is an Empire or a Republic will not be Germany's care; much less will it be troubled as to whether the older or the younger branch of the Bourbons will occupy the throne. If the republic wants to negotiate with itermany, all right, we will hope that they will agree. If no propositions or arresments are made the war against France will be continued. The proclamation of a republic may inspire the French with renewed energy, but it will nevertheless be only a new act of the comedy that France for the last eighty years has been playing with continual change of recenes. The meaning of a Franch republic is but two well known. A republic without republic ansition, Germany is the attacked country. For the wrong done it has to fight, to obtain satisfaction, indomnification and guarantees. We do not think peace can be cetablished before the Germans have taken Faffe; for, if the French are totally beaten, they will consent to what victorious Germany will be entitled to sak. Therefore, they are mistaken who believe the war will be cheat of the war. She must give security, that she will not hereafter break the peace so frivolously. She will have to surrender Elas; and Loubringia. It was treason to separate they have been reconquerced. This will be the substance of the demand which Germany will dictate should the Germans be victorious. Upon these conditions the Germany will be the substance of the demand which Germany will dictate should the Germans be victorious. Upon these conditions the Germans be victorio be the substance of the demand which Ger-many will dictate should the Germans be victorious. Upon these conditions the Ger-mans will return home, and whether the German army leaves behind a republic, an empire or a kingdom, whether a president, en empero or a king plays the comedy, will be natters of indifference to Germany.

Coumbia, whese day it shall be to call, at the earliest precticable moment, a national accuration, in order to complete the organization of a national labor party.

Mr. Cummins thought the labor question presented two phases, one the purely industrial, the other the political. He befieved in a distinct movement in both the political and industrial. He wanted the President to have the privilege of calling a congress which shall undustrial. He wanted the President to have the privilege of calling a congress which shall the privilege of calling a congress which shall more than a more trade unless one political party. this association to partake of the character of more than a more trades unless one pollitical party. There should be a higher purpose, and that purpose should receive early and caruest attention. In Mr. Cameron, of Kanssa, fully concurred with Mr. Cummins in what he had said; said it was applicable to his part of the country, and thought it would apply throughout the country. He therefore recommended the Mr. Wesre, colored delegate, opposed the resolutions, because the believed this association could accomplish much more under the present constitution. He did not believe in originating political parties. History would certainly ropest itself. The Labor Association, which has now become such a power in the land, would rather suiter from the movement, if it were not entirely destroyed. The Catholics and the Prussians.

(From the Paris Monde.)

In Prussis the authorities have accepted all the offers of meterial and religious aid made by the Catholic orders. The greater part of the Jesuits' cetablishments, among others those of Leach and Munster, the Franciscans, Redemptionists and Lezarists are fitting up hospitais in their houses. A large number of fatters of these orders and many of the ordinary clergy have already left for the army. On the 28th of July Prince Frederick Charles and General de Steinmetz passed through Cologne with several officers and Catholic exclessistics, on their way to the camp. Among the pricets was Frince Edmond Radiswill, who will attend especially to the Folish solders, with whose language thoughtaines are dauleying extraordinary exterity. The Central Comm ties of those of St. John of Prussia (Protestants) is at Berlin under the prealdency of Frince de Pless. An immense hall serves as a depot for gifts in kind. Those of St. John of Malta (Catholics) three their seat at Cologne.

The Knughts who foliow the army wear a green uniform.

The Krights who follow the srmy wear a green uniform.

For it is stated that the Prussians have last a regular network of torpedoes along their Balta coast, and at the mouths of the twers form, Weser, and Eba. Both classes of torpedoe are said to be in use, the charge being megeneral dynamite, which is a fearfully explosive material. Many of these torpedoes are believed to be meetanical and exceedingly dangerous to both friends and focs. Others are arranged on the ordinary electrical principle, and are perfectly safe exceept when the exceeding-communications are established. Thus the navigation of the coast, with its rivers and harbors, is quite open to the friendly ship. The merchantman many satley steer over and among the hidden mines, yet the channel may be effectually closed to the pursuer. The torpedo is the war-ship's beautiful or the channel may be effectually closed to the pursuer.
